of what was said: The lecturer commenced by adverting to a fact which was only of recent date, he meant the cus tom of speaking of the American nation, as if it consisted of a variety of nations and religious instead of being one great and undivided people. Nor was this error confined to the ephemeral literature of papers and magazines, but even grave historians had been guilty of it, and everything excellent in the institutions and manners of the country, was attributed to the Anglo-Saxon race, and to the influence ( Protestantism; whilst many went so far as to con sider Catholie and foreigner synonymous terms, s that to be a Catholic was to be a foreigner, and if a foreigner, as a matter of course, you are a Catholic. Now, it was highly requisite to demonstrate that these opinions were erroneous, for in this country. where the laws are made by public opinion, such statements, passing from mouth to mouth might be considered as a prospectus of laws that would be enacted unless these opinions were counteracted by argument, and also by all moral means which the laws allowed them to employ. He proposed to show the benefits which Catho cism had conferred upon America, by exampletaken from three eras of history: Firstly, The begining of American history was exclusively Cathohe. Secondly, During the colonial history, the conduct of the Catholic colonies towards the Aborigines contrasts most favorably with that of the Anglo-Saxon and Dutch colonies. Thirdly, Catholic blood and treasure were liberally spent during the Revolu tion, in securing the Independence. The lecture was, however, subsequently compelled to omit the third portion on account of the length to which the other two parts of the lecture had extended. The character of Columbus was depicted, and the

Genoese warrior contrasted with our notions of the modern sailor, who, half drunk with a quid or 'tgeca in his mouth, undertakes to steer a horse as he would a ship; but the seaman of the middle ages. half soldier, would fight on shore in defence of the cross, then repairing on board his small vessel, would steer it from cape to cape, fearless of the dangers to which his body was exposed, but exceedingly timorous for its immortal freight-the soul. The ignorance which prevailed in Europe at that time respect ing the Atlantic, and the unknown world beyond it was then glanced at. None but the enthusiastic student could conceive the vague and gloomy terrors which were said to pervade those hidden regions The real motive of Columbus in braving these dangers was then dwelt upon, and it was contended that writers had not done to his character justice, for they had merely depicted him as an enterprising, energetic man, whereas, in truth, his ardent piety was his chief characteristic, and it was his intention to have devoted the riches to be acquired by his voyage to the purpose of rescuing the Holy Sepulchre. Pro ceeding to the court of Spain, whilst he sent his brother to that of France, he spent seven years in what, in Washington phraseology, is termed lobbying At length he obtained a commission of inquiry, to be held at Salamanea, and the candid and upright conduct of the tribunsl was a satisfactory refutation of the culumny that Galileo had been persecuted for his philosophical opinions, for here, at a period long an terior to that event, was a rough seamen urging against all previous opinions, and calmly heard and assented to by a body of learned doctors. But the funds of the enterprise were still deficient, and Columbus, weary and heart-sick, was about to leave Spain, when he arrived, on foot, at a monastery, where a Dominican Friar, named Juan Perez took up his cause, and, mounting his mule, rode at midnight through the pine woood, to the court of Isabella who has obtained above all women the title of the Calhotic. She immediately declared her willingness to pledge her jewels rather than permir the enterprise to be abandoned. So we perceive standing in a group, Faith, Hope, and Charity, personified in the Monk the Mariner, and the Queen. The lecturer having dwelt upon the difficulties that Columbus had to go through before he succeeded in obtaining the object of his desires, at last sailed having the greatest trouble to obtain a crew, so superstitious were the people at that time, respecting the hidden dangers of the Atlantic. The discovery of the American shore was then related with all the romantic incidents appertaining thereto, and the conduct of the French and Spanish Missionaries with the following sentence: "I solemnly aver that contrasted favorably with the Anglo-Saxons.

It would be impossible in this brief sketch to give a full account of the lecture, which took up some hours in the delivery, and which was not completely finished as mentioned above, from the long period of time that it had already occupied.

"The Willow Copse."-Mr. Marshall, lessee of the National Theatre, Washington, has been treat ing our people and the stangers, to a series of rich and novel performances, by the best stock company in the United States-including all the old favorites of that long established place of resort, the Wafnut street Theatre, Philadelphia, of which Mr. Marshall is also the lessee. It may be many years before another such company as this makes it appearance on the Washington boards. Last evening, for in stance, a new play, by Bourcicault, author of the celebrated comedy of "London Assurance," and at this moment, nearly as much distinguished in England as Senibe and the two Dumas are in France. was presented to the patrons of the National, and creafed great sensation. As a drama, it deserves to be placed in the first rank, and reflects lasting credit upon the writer. The citations are striking, the language terse and original, and the plot exciting and natural. It never was played better. Mrs. Duffield was more than herself, and displayed a fervor, a feeling, a power, and a fidelity to nature, that proved her to be a woman of true genius and imitation. A'Becket, Hale, Mrs. Hale, McDonough. Young, &c., &c., could not be commended too highly for the effect and spirit of their respective personations. "Willow Copse" is to be played again tonight. Those who desire to enjoy a rage intellectual treat, should be on hand as soon as possible.

Young Men's Christian Association .- It appear that the reading of the annual report of the above Society occupied so much time on Monday even ing, that no time was left to Bishop Potter, who was to have delivered a lecture, to do so. The Reverend lecturer, in consequence, confined himself to some extempore remarks, which although excellent in character, were not however, of sufficient length i be offered as a substitute for the subject proposed. Much disappointment was felt by many of those present at this untoward result, which was chiefly attributed to the length of the report. It was a pity that so much time was occupied with this document. as it could easily have been deferred to another oc casion, or distributed among the members in a printed form. The majority of those present, we will be bound to say, went to hear the lecture and not the report, and therefore were not very well contented that their time had been thus unfortunately lost .--Indeed at most annual meetings of this kind, the reports and business transactions appear very prosy to the generality of these present, especially when the public in general are invited to attend, and might very well be made known by a printed account, which every one could read at their leisure. At the meeting of the above Society, the audience were in danger of being inflicted with a reading of other re ports, besides the one that was delivered, from the Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer. The reading of these was postponed, however, un'il Monday next, when the Society meet again at the Smithsonian Institution to hear a lecture from Professor De Bow on the "Progress of the Republic." The better plan would be to defer the reading of these reports until after the lecture, which would be only complimentary to the lecturer, and ought to have been done on Monday last.

It appears from the above report just alluded to which was read by Mr. Z. Richards, the President of the Association, that the number of books in the library has been increased during the year from 350 to 1,040, besides taking in 70 periodicals. Of these 140 were procured by purchase, and the remainder by gift. Of the periodicals, 12 are paid for by the Society, 13 are paid for and given, and 45 are furnished by the editors. The property of the Associ ation is valued at $700, and it occupies for its opera-

The American Colonization Society held their anoual meeting last night, at Trinity Church. It appears from the report, that there have been sent to Liberia daring the past year, 783 emigrants under the auspices of the Fociety. Among them was a family sent by Montgomery Bell, of Nashville, Tennessee, in the General Pierce, which sailed from Savanuah on the 16th of December, consisting of a man and his wife and thirty-six children and grandchildren. Mr. Bell gave them a good outfit, and paid their expenses to Savannah, and gave the Society $2,000 towards their colonization. He has a large number, some of whom he wants to send in the next vessel, (about eighty;) and he is willing to give them likewise a good outfit, pay their expenses to the port of embarkation, and one half the amount necessary to transport them to Liberia, and support them there for six months. The Society are looking out for some generous friend to give them $2,400 to pay the other half; so that they can sail in the packet of the first of April. Mr. Bell has long been known as one of the largest manufacturers of iron. and his slaves have been his only workmen. They thoroughly understand the business, and are men of high moral character, who would be an acquisition to any country. The fermer insisted upon the recognition of Liberia as an independent government by the United States, and contrasted the condition of the colony at an earlier period with what it presented at the present time. He expressed his sincere desire that semething should be done for the colony by the establishment of a line of steamers to that part of the world.

The Gardiner Case. - The subject of the lost papers has been made a topic of discussion in the City papers. Both parties have published varying accounts of the transaction. In reply to the published testimony of the different parti s in court, in any way connected with this mysterious affair, who gave their evidence as to their knowledge of what took place, Dr. Gardiner has published a letter concluding the loss of this paper is of the greatest possible injury to my cause, and the greatest misfortune that could have befallen me; whilst its disappearance, as at present advised, I believe will be the only obstacle te my exposing the false and malicious foundations of this prosecution."

Risley's Variete continues as amusing as ever, the performances to night consisting of the admirable tragedy of Ugolino, by the celebrated but now departed Booth, in which our distinguished young American actor, Mr. Goodall, will again appear on the boards of this Theatre. In the course of the evening, the accomplished actsess, Belle Adams, will deliver the "Fireman's Address," written by G. W. The Annual Meeting of the Alexandria Orphan Asylum at the Lyceum, filled that spacious hall. Captain T. W. Ashby occupied the chair; and after prayer by Rev. Dr. Harrison, the reading of reports, åc., Rev. Byron Sunderland, and D. Funstein, Esq., enchained the attention of the audience until a late hour, in eloquent and touching appeals to their charity: the response of upwards of $2,000 contributed by the audience followed; and after another fine piece by the Musical Association, whose talent had several times enlivened the meeting, the audience were dismissed.

The Legislature has, among its other business last week, been engaged in passing the bills necessary to remove all obstructions in the way of the Alexandria and Washington Railroad, authorizing the Canal and Turnpike companies to sell portions of their property for their use, &c. The extension of the Orange road to Lynchburg, has been several times up for discussion in the Senate; but, as yet, no final action has been taken. The bill authorizing the city of Washington to subscribe to the Loudon and Hamshire railroad was reconsidered in the Senate on Monday, and a substitute for it offered by Mr.

WHY HAVE WE TWO EYES!-That was the question which Mr. WHEATSTONE entrapped nature nto answering, in the new theory of vision. In June, 1838, Prof. WHEATSTONE detailed the true theory of binocular vision, together with a description an I diagram of his illustrative apparatus, which he first called the STEREOSCOPE, (after two Greek words, meaning "Solids, I see,") for which, in 1840, he was awarded the Royal Medal. Its practical utility has been overlooked, until very recently it has been applied to Daguerreotypes.
